Files Looted Of Data Held Vital In U.S. Campaign

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—(UP)—Valuable campaign documents and confidential data have been stolen from the republican national committee offices here, it was learned today. Private detectives have been called in on the case by party officials, it was said.

On two different occasions the desk and personal files of Harry J. Brown, assistant to former Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas, national director of publicity, have been rifled.

Brown said the papers taken were of the greatest importance now but would be valueless after the close of the campaign. At the present time the documents stolen are irreplaceable, he said.

Clerks and stenographers are on constant duty in Brown's office during the day, making it impossible to rifle the filing cabinets during working hours, it was said. Brown is of the opinion the thefts were committed after the offices were closed for the night.

Chairman Work refused to comment on the thefts.

Other offices in national headquarters were said to have been visited by intruders but no other thefts were reported.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 4.—(UP)—Gov. Alfred E. Smith issued another series of blasts today against the republicans and defended his prohibition modification proposals on the ground of state rights. He also replied to critics of his record as governor of New York.

Smith received newspaper correspondents before going out for a round of golf. He was reminded at the outset that he must have something "pretty hot" with the world series for news competition.

"Well, warm it up," he said, and reporters started to quiz him, getting ready-fire responses in Smith's characteristic manner.

He was asked first about the speech delivered Wednesday night by former Senator James W. Wadsworth of New York, a republican, in which Wadsworth had criticized his prohibition modification proposals as unworkable.

"That was not a very sensible thing for him to say," Smith commented. "I am a Jeffersonian democrat and I believe in state rights. I want those states to be dry that want to be dry. Under my plan, you retain all those features of national prohibition for the states that want to be dry."

SCHOOL HEADS ASK BOND CHANGE

DEL MONTE, Oct. 4.—(U.P.)—California's public school superintendents approved reappointment of state school bonds on a "fairer" basis of equalization at today's session of their annual convention here.

Proposed legislation to provide temporary and permanent remedies for the present situation will be brought before the next session of the legislature as a result of the vote.

The present apportionment method was assailed as defective by C. R. Holbrook of San Bernardino who said that under the law the state takes a larger proportion from the poorer counties and apportioned the large percentage of funds to the richer counties.

The most glaring fault, that no account is taken of the great inequalities in the ability of counties to finance their own education, Holbrook said.

Good heating and fuel economy

come only with heating equipment carefully planned and installed

You know how homes differ in their size and the type of building materials used. There is 10% less heat loss through plaster and board walls as through brick walls. And there is 25% less heat loss through insulated walls. These are some of the facts our staff considers before recommending a heating system. For after all, a furnace must keep your home warm no matter how your home is built.

Only trained engineers can weigh such facts and fit the proper heating equipment to each home.

There is no obligation if you have one of our men look over your home. The facts he finds will be taken back for careful consideration by our staff. Then you'll know the recommendations they make will be good. As we will always be in business we can only afford to recommend good gas heating equipment to our customers. And that is one reason why all our recommendations are carefully made. Another reason is, this company knows by years of carefully kept records, that good heating and fuel economy come only with heating equipment carefully planned and installed.

A postcard or phone call will bring a heating expert to your home.

7 NEW YORKERS TAKE PART IN FOUR WALLS

It takes seven New Yorkers to make up the cast of John Gilbert's new starring picture of the New York East Side, "Four Walls," which comes to the California theater today.

Gilbert himself was at one time on the New York stage and spent several years in that city during his childhood. Joan Crawford, although not a native New Yorker, is a native actress. She was dancing in the Winter Garden, when Harry Rapf, a Merton-Goldwyn-Mayer executive, saw her and gave her the great chance on the screen.

Vera Gordon, who plays the role of Gilbert's mother, was for years one of the best known actresses on the New York stage. Carmel Myers, who plays Bertha, is another of the millions who in their youth called the great city "home."

Louis Nathan and Jack Byron, who are the villains of the play, have both spent many months in New York while on the "big time" vaudeville.

Robert Emmet O'Connor, who plays the New York detective, is also to be found in the long list of those who have made a name for themselves on the New York stage.

Other features include "Our Gang Comedy," "Spooks Spooking," "News and Carlo reel."

"THE SINGING FOOL," starring Al Jolson, is a Warner Bros. picture.

SYNOPSIS
Marcus, the famous Broadway producer, visits Blackie Joe's New York night club, where he hears Al Stone, Blackie's singing waiter, render a love ballad of his own composition. Marcus offers to buy the song and Al consents on condition that the producer will hire Molly, his sweetheart, to sing the song in one of the Marcus revues. Marcus agrees. Molly had treated Al disdainfully before that, because he was only a waiter, but now she makes up to him. Thus the night ends with two persons, Al and Molly, supremely happy. But there is sadness in the heart of Grace, the beautiful little cigarette girl, for she is deeply in love with Al. She runs quickly home to hide her tears.

CHAPTER IX

Time heals the sharpest wounds, say the philosophers. Perhaps, but the memory of the wounds may last a long, long time. Fortunately is the man or girl who has the strength to keep those memories from becoming bitter.

Grace Farrell, the cigarette girl at Blackie Joe's, was such a person. Al Stone and Molly Winton had left and become headliners on Broadway. As the weeks lengthened into months Grace heard reports of their achievements and saw their pictures in the papers. Al had become one of the outstanding songwriters of Tin-Pan-Alley; his melodious scores featured all the Marcus revues. His ballads and comic numbers had made him famous throughout America. Molly, true to Al's prediction, had become a headliner in the Marcus musical shows.

Once Grace begged time off from Blackie to see the outstanding Marcus show of the season. She had hoped Al would appear, but he didn't. However, Molly was there as one of the featured performers, singing Al's words and melodies. Grace, leaning forward in her first row gallery seat, had to admit Molly put the songs over well. Molly was left, graceful, self-possessed, and she knew how to get the most from a song's variations.

"Perhaps I was wrong in thinking she couldn't make Al happy," mused Grace. "She certainly knows her business and she is awfully pretty."

Yes, Molly was pretty. Yet Grace's intuition told her, even from this distance, that there was something cold and calculating about her successful blonde rival. Her smile and gaiety made Grace distrust her.

But Grace caught herself up on these critical thoughts—perhaps, she reasoned, they came from jealousy. She determined to stifle them. They weren't fair to Molly.

Occasionally Al revisited Blackie Joe's and received congratulations from his old friends, but Molly never deigned to set foot in the place where she had started her climb up the ladder of fame.

"That's Molly—too high-hat," murmured Blackie Joe to Grace in explanation.

Grace never forgot Al's first visit to Blackie's after Broadway had claimed him for its own. She was very busy with her cigarette tray, her head lowered, when a familiar voice inquired:

"How much the lot, Gracie?" Grace almost tipped the tray over in her astonishment and delight. There stood Al, resident in the latest cut of dinner coat, with the same happy, boyish smile, the same kindly eyes, the same white, even teeth.

Al leaned over, before Grace knew what he was about, and kissed her lightly on the cheek. It was merely a quick, friendly peck, with no hint of romantic feeling, but because he was unprepared, Grace blushed crimson. Al did not know that his careless gesture aroused afresh the profound love for him that had caused Grace sleepless nights and that she had managed to control only recently. But in a moment she recovered herself completely, giving him a friendly smile to match his own. She was determined he should never know how she had, unwittingly, made her suffer.

"We're simply thrilled about your success, Al!" she exclaimed enthusiastically. "Blackie and I and the others here at the club talk of you often. You're a famous man, Al, and you'll be a rich man soon."

"Yes, I suppose so," Al replied, laughing. "It's awfully good of you to think of me."

But Grace thought she detected the faintest shadow cross his mouth.

"What's the matter, Al?" she inquired anxiously. "Isn't everything as you wished?"

"Oh, yes, Gracie, everything's K. O.," answered Al.

Then he shook hands with the performers and, after a short talk with Blackie, vanished to the glittering uptown section to visit Marcus in his palatial skyscraper office overlooking Broadway. They talked over the next revue.

"Well, Al, is genius burning? What price the new songs?"

"They're coming along swell," answered Al quickly. "I've got a South Sea number almost finished and I'm starting on a kid song. I think I'll call it 'Little Feller.' Like that, little?"

"Sound good," said the producer. "Can you let me see both next week?"

"Sure thing," said Al, and nervously rose to leave. He wanted to reach Molly's dressing room at the Manhattan Roof Theatre soon, for the show was ending. But he also wanted to ask one question.

"How's Molly getting along, Marcus?"

"Great! She's a fine little artist and the crowds take to her."

Al fairly beamed. He didn't care so much about his own success, but whenever anyone praised Molly, a happy glow stole over him. His wife was still his dream girl. But now Marcus said a strange thing, "Everything's all right between you and Molly."

"Oh, surely! Everything's perfect. Why do you ask?"

"Oh, nothing—but you know in show business, where partners in marriage are both headliners there's often discussion. You and Molly are unusual that way."

Marcus gave a mysterious little smile and Al moved toward the door. "Molly's the one who's unusual—she's perfect!" said Al, and disappeared through the door.

He wondered what Marcus meant by that mysterious smile, but dismissed it from his mind as he rode down in the elevator. Then he turned the corner, ran across the street, and entered another elevator to be whisked aloft to the Manhattan Roof. He found Molly in her dressing room, garbed for the street, chatting with John Perry.

John Perry was Al's best friend and a peculiar individual. The most peculiar thing about him was his mysterious source of income. He never seemed to work, yet he had plenty of money and spent it freely. Along the White Way they called him a racketeer and said he controlled the illicit distribution of contraband liquor in a district peppered with high class night clubs.

Physically he was decidedly prepossessing, being tall and dark. When Molly and Al had first arrived on Broadway John Perry had sung their praises and done them many little favors. Al, who liked everybody, had taken a decided fancy to John and had frequently talked over his songs with the debonaire racketeer. Molly hadn't seemed to like John so much at first, but lately his charm of manner had won her over, and her attitude had been quite friendly.

Perry jumped up the moment Al entered and proffered his hand. "Well, Al, old top, I've been visiting Molly. Hope you don't object. 'Not at all,' Al blurted out, suggestion with a wince of the hand. 'I like Molly to meet other men. And you know, John, I regard you as one of my best friends.'"

John Perry raised his glance toward the ceiling, shrugged his shoulders, but did not answer. "Shall we go—Al?" said Molly quickly and rather nervously. "I been waiting for you some time."

"Sure, right away. I was detestably talking to Marcus about the show. I have arranged for you to have the place of the songs. We shall we go to a club or home."

"Let's go home, Al. I'm tired. As they left the dressing room, John Perry followed them to the door. He did not see Perry's hand a surreptitious squeeze as he followed.

YANKEES WIN FIRST GAME IN WORLD SERIES, 4 TO 1

HOMER GIVES CARDS LONE TALLY

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
YANKEE STADIUM, New York, Oct. 4.—(U.P.)—The good right hand of Waite Hoyt had the St. Louis Cardinals all but helpless today, and the New York Yankees won the opening game of the world series, 4 to 1.

While Sherdel allowed but four hits while he was in the game but three were doubles and one was a homer from the big black bat of Bob Meusel, and the all-important first game was on ice before the Cardinals' southpaw gave way to one of several pinch hitters rushed into the fray by Bill McKeehin in a vain effort to turn the tide.

The national league champions tried to play "wait and see" baseball with Hoyt, but Waite was more than their match in that kind of strategy and let them down with a total of three hits, turning in one of the best pitching performances of a modern world series.

There was just one bright moment in the Cardinals' afternoon when "Sunny Jim" Bottomley caught hold of a fast one and smashed it far and away into the right field bleachers. With the crack of the bat it was apparent to everyone where the ball was going. Babe Ruth, resting comfortably on his right field with his hands on his knees, never even straightened up to follow the flight of the sphere. There was no one on base and it was the only time the St. Louis club even so much as threatened a serious attack on Hoyt.

While Sherdel started in pitching as though he believed the American leaguers were being brought up to the plate in wheel chairs. He lobbed soft ones to Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig in the first inning after two were out and Babe and Lou promptly lobbed them right back into right field for a brace of doubles and the first New York run.

This might not have been so bad, for Sherdel still had plenty on his rest of the Yankees, but the fourth inning brought the Babe back to bat again and once more the Cardinals' little southpaw pitcher tried to play bean-bag with the Bambino.

The second pitch Sherdel delivered never would have reached the plate, whether Ruth had been around or not, so softly and gently did it leave the pitcher's box. But the Babe stood not on ceremony, shuffling out a few yards and wrapping his bat around his broad shoulders, he whacked another double into centerfield and the fans went whoopee.

Lou Gehrig was an easy out, which brought up Bob Meusel. Breaking up a world series ball game is no new trick for the lanky leftfielder of the Yankees. With two balls and a strike called, Meusel slammed the fourth pitch into the right field bleachers, the ball just clearing the wire netting with George Washington Harper reaching vainly for it.

The Babe, who had been practicing around second base, didn't even attempt to run. He stood with his back toward third base, chuckling and clapping his hands as Meusel came swinging around first. Then they trotted home together. More whoopee, and even 4,425 fans can make a bit of it when the Babe is performing.

Those runs would have been enough to win the game if Hoyt was pitching. The Cardinals didn't smell a bit of their own until the fifth, when Harper singled to center with one out. He was promptly forced out and Wilson died kneeling, so that there was no semblance of a score in that session.

Heroes Of First World Series Game

BOB MEUSEL accounted for two of the tallies for the New Yorkers by scoring Ruth ahead of him with a homer.

BOTTOMLEY, first baseman for the Cardinals who collected their only tally by knocking a homer in the seventh.

NOT SO LUCKY Sherdel, pitcher for the Cardinals was charged with the first defeat of the world series.

WAITE HOYT, Yankee, who pitched his team to victory in the first game of the world series yesterday.

Pacific Gridders Will Clash With Chico Tomorrow

STOCKTON, Oct. 4.—Chico State will get a chance to show whether or not it rates membership in the Far Western conference when the Wildcats meet the College of Pacific Tigers in the local stadium tomorrow. The game will also renew a rivalry which was suspended last year when the two teams failed to schedule a game.

Chico State has been clamoring for admittance into the Far Western conference of which Pacific is a charter member. The Wildcats have been placed on trial this year and may be considered for membership next year. A victory over Pacific, a conference team, would undoubtedly boost the Chico stock.

The Wildcats are sending a veteran team to meet the Tigers and Coach "Swede" Richter will have his hands full pitting over a win. The Bengals are in pretty good shape following the tough battles against Modesto Saturday and bar injuries, should place a strong team on the field.

Mighty Squeeze Breaks Trigger On Hunter's Gun

They're telling many tales on counters now that the duck season is out, but the one told on D. W. E. Cunningham of this city to win the cup.

Dr. Cunningham in company with a party of local friends went to Colusa recently. The shooting was good from the bird in which they had installed themselves—so good in fact that the doctor pulled too hard on the trigger of his gun, breaking the trigger. There was nothing else to do but walk two miles in rubber boots to get another.

If it hadn't been for the broken trigger there is no telling how many ducks Dr. Cunningham would have bagged, so the story goes, as he had already downed 14 before the gun failed him.

Next time he plans to have stronger triggers. Others in the party were Bruce Dougal, William Hoyer, Thomas Morgan and Bruce Lowery. They all report between 14 and 20 ducks to their credit.

MANY ATTEND INSANITY PLEA FOR 'APE BOY' PREDICTED

Crowds of Richmond people anxious to view for the first time Garfinkle's new headquarters at 31-18 Macdonald avenue attended the formal opening and housewarming held last night between the hours of 7 and 9:30 o'clock.

Throughout the day, workmen completed the details of the interior in readiness for the opening. The large display windows were veiled while Ernest Marcus supervised the placing of merchandise and the decorations which set off the models to advantage.

Promptly at 7 o'clock the doors were thrown open. Louis Garfinkle, president and manager of the store; Mrs. Florence Marcus, assistant manager and supervisor of the women's department and Ernest Marcus, manager of the men's department, were on hand to receive guests. Throughout the evening ensemble music was provided by Chick Barry's orchestra.

Wishes of Success Numerous baskets of chrysanthemums in various shades and vases of other fall flowers, presented with the well wishes of Garfinkle's many business associates and friends, added to the beauty of the store.

Girl Scouts presided over two large punch crocks. One bowl labeled for Smith and the other for Hoover.

Specially selected stock of the latest fall models have been secured for the new store and a number of the models were on display in windows. The newest idea in wax models were used to display the new gowns, frocks and coats in the fall shades. Vases of tall, yellow chrysanthemums were used for color contrast. The floodlighting of the display windows by indirect fixtures was particularly noticeable, all shadows being eliminated.

Garfinkle's new store, the equal of the most exclusive shops in San Francisco and Oakland, presents a number of features seen for the first time in Richmond. Last night in the women's department several of the new fall models were displayed for the benefit of the visitors.

While both the men's and women's departments are housed in the new location, each maintains its separate department with separate entrance.

Daylight is conserved for the interior of the store by the design of the store front. Latticed windows extending across the entire front above display windows admit plenty of light to remove the necessity of employing artificial light during the daytime.

Indirect lighting fixtures furnish the interior with ample light for nights.

Addition to Richmond Garfinkle's new store marks a distinct addition to the business section of Richmond and his 14 years of successful merchandising in this city insures him success in his new location.

Today, both the women's and men's departments will be opened for business and as a feature of the opening Garfinkle has decided to donate to the Girl Scouts of Richmond five percent of all sales made today.

Girl Scouts who served punch at the opening last night were Christine Troya, Alene Hucks, Markuerite Gdman, Marion Honsinger, Marguerite Russell, Emilda Allen, Viola Allen, Elsie Appel, Eunice Curtis, Esther Durnal, Rith Godson, Phyllis Hudson, Iola Hansen, Dorothy Hathaway, Margie Laxon, Audrey Munn, Marion O'Brien, Virginia Semman, Violet Cross, Dorothy Poole, Nellie Adams, Dorothy Figueiredo, Twila Baughman, Emma Baughman, Ruth Brown, Alice Borghi, Dorothy Gswill, Marguerite Sharpe, Bernice Picklesimer and Grace Bodin.
